- Laura Ann will be attending the Women's March and is interested in a dual degree program at Agnes Scott.

Comprehensive Plan conversations:

- Daniel and his parents had a conversation about the race distribution in Sugar Hill and reflected on their reasons to come to the United States and Sugar Hill.
- Lexi and her mother had a conversation on the homeless population residing in Sugar Hill and how its effects linger within the city and beyond.
- Camden's mother was surprised at the number of local businesses in the area due to the number of them being homegrown. His parents are excited to see the Greenway grow!
- Khushi's mother had a reflected on the cultural education project and enclaves in the city and how it affects the rest of the city as well as the ethnic diversity presented.
- Bhumi's family is excited to see the development going with the city with the E Center and Greenway and how the transportation issue can affect the nearby area.
- Camryn's father had wished the city had created a golf cart friendly area but appreciated the growing city development regarding the transportation.
- Nida's parents had a conversation regarding the city transportation statistics and how her own mother travels to Atlanta for work. Her mother also commented on the growing ethnic diversity in the area.
- Laura Ann's brother agreed on the value of public transportation in the city's location to Atlanta which is such an important asset for its residents.
